Kate Hoyer

Kate remembers the day she chose stripes as her style of choice. Though she had done quite a few striped drawings in high school, she didn't realize it would become her passion until right after she graduated in 1986.

Initially, Kate created abstract drawings with stripes, but then she had an epiphany: she wanted to combine the design of stripes with a recognizable subject – hence giving something ordinary a unique presence.

She paints dogs in stripes because it makes us look at dogs not just as animals we own but as part of our culture. Painting them in stripes echoes how integrated they have become. And there are endless possibilities and so many subjects she'd like to interpret into stripes and color.

Kate is from Chicago, Illinois and now makes her home in Flagstaff, Arizona.
